A communicable disease is an illness caused by bacteria or viruses that are spread directly or indirectly from one person to another. What's covered if you need to cancel your holiday because of Coronavirus: We'll cover cancellation costs (including any pre-booked excursions) if you or someone you're travelling with: contracts Coronavirus before your tripis told to self-isolate by a doctor, the NHS or an educational or child-care setting following the advice of a public health authority, and the time needed to self-isolate goes past your original departure date (evidence may be required)is not allowed to board due to health checks that result in a positive Coronavirus PCR test taken within 48 hours. What Coronavirus cover do you have when you're on holiday: We will cover overseas medical and repatriation (the cost to get you home) expenses as long as the Foreign Commonwealth and Development Office (FCDO) have not advised against travelling because of Coronavirus. We'll also cover any additional accommodation and travelling home costs you may have if you have to self-isolate on holiday, including if this goes past your original return date (for example, if there is an outbreak of Coronavirus in your hotel or resort). What's not covered: Santander Travel Insurance won't provide cover if you can claim back your costs (including cash equivalents such as vouchers) from anywhere else including any travel provider or compensation scheme. It also won't cover the following: You decide not to travel Expenses you have because of any country's government travel restrictions, including the UKTravel restrictions made by a travel or accommodation providerFinancial failure of your travel or holiday providerThe FCDO advising against all travel because of a Coronavirus outbreakFor policies taken out before 12 August 2021Santander Travel Insurance will cover overseas medical and repatriation (the cost to get you home) expenses claims relating to coronavirus. However, if you're planning on travelling to or returning from anywhere that the FCDO has advised against, you won't be covered for any other claim relating to coronavirus (or any variation or mutation of it), such as cancellation. See our travel insurance documents for more information. For policies taken out before 12 August 2020In some cases, we may be able to provide you with cancellation cover for Coronavirus-related claims. Please call Chubb customer services on 0800 519 9921. Lines are open Monday to Friday, 9am-5pm. Always check before booking a trip Before booking a trip or travelling, check the FCDO for travel advice. You can check the country you plan to visit to see the latest updates and whether it's safe to travel there. These updates may change regularly and at short notice during this current pandemic. Therefore, we strongly recommend that you check your cancellation rights with your travel provider before booking any overseas holiday. Instead, there is a vast array of individual policies that sit under that umbrella. After all, a restaurant or beauty salon has different insurance needs to a consultancy firm or construction company. Read on, then, to find out the various types of small business insurance available, how they might apply to your business will cost. » COMPARE: Business insurance for small businesses explainedFrom courier insurance and beyond, there are countless types of insurance that could apply to your small business. You should carefully evaluate the risks, which are common in your industry, and select the sector-specific policies that will provide you the best level of coverage. However, there are some more general small business employers' liability insurance This is arguably more important than any other form of small business insurance in the UK. This is because it is legally required the moment you start employing people. It may not be the case if you run a business that only employs members of your family, or you employ someone who is based abroad. The UK government dictates that you must have a policy from an authorised insurer that covers at least £5 million. If you fail to secure employees' liability insurance, you can be fined up to £2,500 a day. If your employee makes a claim against your business, perhaps due to an illness or injury they suffered while doing their job, this form of insurance will cover the legal and compensation costs.» COMPARE: Employers' liability insurance for small businesses would cover claims made by clients, visitors and members of the general public. Normally this form of insurance covers personal injury, death and property loss or damage. It is worth looking into public liability insurance if your small business carries out work in public spaces or people's homes, or if you have frequent visitors to your business. This means it can cover everything from pubs and salons to builders and decorators. For example, if you run a decorating company and you accidentally damage your client's property, public liability insurance would pay for the costs.» COMPARE: Public liability insurance would pay for the costs.» COMPARE: Public liability insurance would pay for the costs. insurance comes in.
